The remainder of the day is at your leisure. Perhaps take a walk along the Promenade des Anglais! Nice's Promenade des Anglais is lined with cafes situated directly on the beach, and It is a bustling area active with cyclists, runners, walkers, and roller bladers. It has existed for decades, dating back to the 1800s when aristocrats from throughout Europe flocked to the inviting Cote d'Azur city. Today, it is a thriving concourse along the Riviera city, home to many landmark hotels, dozens of cafes, and miles of beach. It stretches from the airport on the western side to Old Nice (and the quai des Etats-Unis) to the east.

Nice's colorful Vieille Ville, or Old Town, is a delightful maze of narrow streets full of lively restaurants, galleries, and shops. There are cafés dotted all around the Old Town's many squares, so take the opportunity to sit down, coffee in hand and people-watch the day away. Stroll along the near-mile Promenade du Paillon, the city's public park and botanical garden that links the Museum of Modern and Contemporary Art.
